

Where Our Love Used To Be

Words & Music by John Ryan
Copyright ©2005 John Ryan (ASCAP)
Published by Ryanwood Music (ASCAP)
Ryan Music Inc. (www.ryanmusic.com)

There may come a day
When love may come my way again
Though I must find a way
To open up my heart, and learn to love again

For when you've been betrayed
It's hard to learn to trust again
I need to breakaway
My world was torn apart, and I must start again

I tried so hard to conceal
That last bit of love you couldn't steal
But now I've cast it all behind me

Like a thief in the night
You took all the love I left in sight
And now there's nothing left inside me
Where our love used to be

There may come a time
When I may learn to give again
And it would be a crime
To think that I may be, taken down again

I've tried so hard to conceal
The scars from a wound that just won't heal
But now I've left it all behind me

Like a thief in the night
You took all the love I left in sight
And now there's nothing left inside me
Where our love used to be

Even a thief in the night
Will leave when there's nothing left in sight
And there is nothing left inside me
Where our love used to be... So leave, and let me be There's nothing left in me... Where our love used to be